

CONTEMPORARY KANATA

We are a new undergraduate journal affiliated with the Robarts Centre for Canadian Studies, aiming to publish quality research in the social sciences and humanities about Canada. Our larger project involves efforts to decolonize knowledge and scholarship within the field of Canadian Studies, and we hope to publish pieces and articles that reflect the perspectives of marginalized voices. Currently we are seeking submissions of article abstracts from undergraduate students and scholars at York University that reflect an interest to publish in our inaugural Spring 2021 issue. Interested parties should please send their abstract by October 26th to contemporarykanata@gmail.com.

These abstracts should ideally include a clear research question that the article hopes to resolve or in some way address, at least three scholarly texts that will be drawn on to posit the arguments to be made, as well as ideas about the praxis considerations, or the value and importance of the research being undertaken. Submissions should not have names or any identifying information on them.

We look forward to reviewing submissions from a wide range of disciplines that have Canada as a unit or point of analysis. We encourage as well work that draws on essays submitted in class.
